

NATIONAL Examiner GIVEAWAY

SINCE summer is here, you'll need plenty of great reading material. And we have it with this Summer Book Blast. Each of our five lucky winners will receive ALL of the books shown below, plus some great items from our editor — a $140 prize. For a chance to win this FREE Book Blast see page 54.

BEST-SELLING author Phillip Margolin is back with private investigator Dana Cutler. In Sleight Of Hand, she's drawn into a cold-blooded murder when a criminal defense lawyer, who happens to be an amateur magician, tries to frame somebody else for his wife's murder. You'll stay up late into the night with this $26.99 HarperCollins hardcover.

TOLD from the perspective of three women all connected to a 5-year-old girl, The Comfort Of Lies by Randy Susan Meyers is a haunting tale linking the birth mother, the adoptive mother and the birth father's wife. This emotional heartfelt novel is $25 from Atria Books.

IN Deborah Crombie's The Sound Of Broken Glass, Scotland Yard Detective Gemma James is investigating what seems to be two random killings. But could they be connected? This exciting mystery is $25.99 from William Morrow.

FRIENDSHIP, family and quilting provide the backdrop to Marie Bostwick's Between Heaven And Texas, an inspiring story about a sassy Texan with a Down syndrome child. In this $15 Kensington paperback, she learns to piece together a rich and vibrant life.

A woman whose romantic adventures get her into trouble is the theme behind Elizabeth Haynes' suspense novel Dark Tide. In this dark, sexy thriller, a stripper learns the real cost of mixing business with pleasure. It's $15 from Harper Paperbacks.

A returning war vet finds that she cannot stop being a soldier in Drusilla Campbell's When She Came Home. Unable to relate to her husband or daughter, this gut-wrenching novel will strike a chord with many veterans, both male and female. It's $15 from Grand Central Publishing.
